

Application of neural network in assembly

Izabela Kutschenreiter-Praszkiewicz

University of Bielsko-Biala

The paper presents neural network application for time consumption assessment of innovative product parts assembly. Methods of time consumption assessment were discussed. Neural network as a tool of data analysis and prediction was presented. The example of neural network application in assembly of machine parts was presented.